

1%ers

What sort of people go on a trip like this?

It is a sign of how stratified things have become that even within the top 1 percent there are differences between the single-digit millionaires and the double- or triple-digit millionaires.
The people on this trip were by and large
on the lower end of the upper class.
One had a family carpet business.
Another was an I.T. executive at an insurance company.

David Brooks, on a $120,000-per-person, 24-day, round-the-world sightseeing tour
T: The New York Times Style Magazine,
November 15, 2015