

2020 Presidential election

This was a coup organized by the President against the Vice President and against the Congress in order to overturn the 2020 presidential election.

It was what political scientists call a "self-coup" because it's not the military or some other faction attacking the president.

It's the president, fearful of defeat, overthrowing the constitutional process.

Trump was prepared to seize the presidency and likely to invoke the Insurrection Act and to declare martial law. ... There was a violent insurrection and an attempted coup and we were saved by Mike Pence's refusal to go along with that plan and by the valor and bravery of our officers who stood strong against the attempt to just overrun the process.

Jamie Raskin, April 18, 2022, on Jan. 6, 2021