

Aging

Right now, we live well,
and then we don't live well,
and then we die.

The most that science
seems to offer us is this:
We'll live well, and then we'll die.

Adam Gopnik,
New Yorker, May 13, 2019