

Artificial intelligence

A three-letter acronym [for “artificial general intelligence”] doesn't capture the enormity of what AGI would represent, so I will refer to it as what is: God-like AI. A superintelligent computer that learns and develops autonomously, that understands its environment without the need for supervision, and that can transform the world around it. To be clear, we are not here yet. ... God-like AI could be a force beyond our control or understanding, and one that could usher in the obsolescence or destruction of the human race.
