

Bullshitters say

We are no longer going to measure compassion by the number of programs or the number of people on those programs.

We're going to measure compassion and success by the number of people we help get off of those programs to get back in charge of their own lives. We're not going to measure our success by how much money we spend but by how many people we actually help.

Mick Mulvaney, director of the Office of Budget and Management, substituting "help get off" for "push off" and "actually help" for "make disappear" while commenting on his and Trump's proposed 2018 federal budget