

By the numbers

As of January 2016, the average college student would need to work nearly 28 hours at a minimum wage job to pay for just one $200 textbook.

Books can account for 40 percent of academic costs at community colleges.

American Scientist,
November-December 2016, citing Covering the Cost, a report from the U.S. Public Interest Research Group