

By the numbers

More than 25% of gun homicides in 2015 happened across census blocks that contain just 1.5% of the country's total population.

¶

While gun control advocates often say it is unacceptable that Americans overall are “25 times more likely to be murdered with a gun than people in other developed countries”, people who live in these neighborhood areas face an average gun homicide rate about 400 times higher than the rate across those high-income countries.

The Guardian, November 15, 2017