

By the numbers

The most covetable trend in China is the most basic: education. China last year produced roughly nine times as many graduates in science, technology, engineering and mathematics as the US.

Financial Times, September 19, 2017