

By the numbers

The Treasury Department has discovered ... that 18 percent of workers are covered by noncompete agreements. They aren't all high-end engineers with trade secrets in hand. The list includes fast-food workers.

New York Times, November 2, 2016,