

Citizenship

Even though citizenship is commonly misunderstood as a categorical and binary concept (one either is or is not a citizen), in reality, one experiences citizenship as a gradient or slope. Thus, depending on context, one might be said to have more or less of it.

Elizabeth F. Cohen and Cyril Ghosh,
Citizenship