

COVID-19 coronavirus

The global death toll from Covid-19 has passed 4m confirmed cases, as the virus continues to ravage countries with low vaccination coverage.

The number of people killed by the virus has increased at a quickening pace over the course of the pandemic, according to data compiled by Johns Hopkins University.

One million Covid deaths were recorded in the past two and a half months alone, yet it took nine months to reach the 1m death mark.

Financial Times, July 9, 2021