

Crime

Americans have long believed that immigrants are more likely than natives to commit crimes and that rising immigration leads to rising crime. This belief is remarkably resilient to the contrary evidence that immigrants are in fact much less likely than natives to commit crimes.

National Academies of Science Engineering Medicine,
*The Integration of Immigrants into American Society