

Criminal investigations

This appeal requires us to consider whether the district court had jurisdiction to block the United States from using lawfully seized records in a criminal investigation.

The answer is no.

...

The district court improperly exercised equitable jurisdiction in this case.

For that reason, we VACATE the September 5 order on appeal and REMAND with instructions for the district court to DISMISS the underlying civil action.

Beginning and ending of Court of Appeals For the 11th Circuit's decision to end special counsel review of documents seized from Mar-a-Lago