

Employment

The economy increasingly requires people with very high skills or very few. The far more numerous jobs requiring “middle” skills that could be learned principally on the job are disappearing.

Edward Luce,
Time to Start Thinking