

Global warming

We always hear that we should think globally and act locally. I understand what that means — I think we as a nation should be part of the global consciousness. But each individual cannot be part of that. So “Think locally, act locally” is the key message for us.

Søren Hermansen,
“energy magician” of Denmark's Samsø Island