

Higher education

The university is much like the church in its susceptibility to seduction by the powerful of the world. But university people, like churchmen, develop a guilt complex after the seduction has been accomplished.

Peter L. Berger, *An Invitation to Sociology