

Housing

Housing units earmarked for low-income residents have virtually no impact on surrounding property values in major U.S. metro areas, according to an analysis of home-price data that that runs counter to the conventional view that such projects cause nearby property values to decline.

Wall Street Journal, November 29, 2016