

Income inequality

I was once told by the head of a prestigious think tank ... [that its] board was very unlikely to fund any any work that had income or wealth inequality in its title. Yes, they would finance anything that had to do with poverty alleviation, but inequality was an altogether matter. Why?

Charity is a good thing ... But inequality is different: Every mention of it raises in fact the issue of the appropriateness or legitimacy of my income.

Branko Milanovic,
The Haves and the Have Nots