

Kwiple dictionary

dynamic scoring (dī nam'ik scôr' ring), n.

The process used to find the assumptions needed to “prove” that lowering taxes on the rich, lowering spending on the non-rich, and increasing spending on the military will benefit more people more than any other possible set of policies.