Kwiplers say

Require candidates for state and national electoral offices to take a test about facts relevant to the office they seek, with the test being created and administered by subject matter experts and the results being widely publicized one month before the election