

Losers

When Trump broke tradition with every modern president and refused to sell his businesses or at least put them in a blind trust, he must have figured he'd make much more money his way.

Turned out just the opposite. Most financial experts say if he'd have sold it all and put everything into America's bull market, he'd be worth $500 million more today.

Rick Reilly,
Commander in Cheat
[April, 2019]