

Lotteries

... adventurers would as leave lose altogether as acquire trifling prizes and would prefer a small chance of winning a great deal to a great chance of winning little.

Alexander Hamilton, 1793