

Money in politics

Winning the White House in 2016 is expected to cost the successful candidate more than $1bn.

Billionaire mega-donors like the Koch Brothers have already pledged to raise nearly $900m through their sprawling political network, to back conservative candidates.

Financial Times, April 1, 2015,
a mere 587 days prior to election day,
November 8, 2016