

Nation-states

American conservatives take pride in their nation but mistrust their nation's state. American liberals value the state, but feel discomfort with the concept of "nation."

Yet it is the power of the state that makes of the nation something more than a phrase of speech; it is the idea of the nation that legitimates the power of the state.

David Frum, *Trumpocalypse