

Political parties

The problem in so many countries today is that citizens are highly partisan — and feel they haven't been listened to — while parties are hollow and weak and unable to serve as laboratories for a coherent conception of the world.

Jan-Werner Müller, Democracy Rules