

Politics

By claiming that the adversarial model of politics and the left/right opposition had become obsolete, and by celebrating the 'consensus at the center' between centre-right and centre-left, the so-called 'radical center' promoted a technocratic form of politics according to which politics was not a partisan confrontation but the neutral management of public affairs.

Chantal Mouffe, *For a Left Populism