The Sabine River is a public river.
But if you can't drink in the river and you can't swim in the river, or fish in the river,
or baptize your young in the river, then it's not your river.
It's the paper mill's river.

A resident living along the Sabine River in Louisiana, downriver from a paper mill, quoted by Arlie Russell Hochschild, in *Strangers in Their Own Land
