

Populism

... populist campaigns and parties ... often function as warning signs of political crisis. ... they have won only under certain circumstances. Those circumstances are times when people see the prevailing political norm—put forward, preserved and defended by the leading segments in the country—as being at odds with their own hopes, fears, and concerns.

John B. Judis, The Populist Explosion