

Poverty

Personally
I couldn't care less.
One man's as good as another as long as they pay their way.
Only there's people around that don't feel that way.
So if an undesirable asks you for the key,
the shitter's out of order.

Mario Florestano,
owner of a service station with a restroom, to Ernie Munger, his employee, in Leonard Gardner's Fat City