

Presidential immunity from criminal prosecution

As we celebrate this Fourth of July, in a fervent prayer that the court's ruling will work out for the best of all possible worlds, I want to say in conclusion, what goes around comes around.

Sidney Blumenthal,
The New Republic, July 4, 2024, conclusion to Biden's 4th of July speech following the Supreme Court's decision immunizing presidents from prosecution for criminal acts performed while in office, in which Biden announces the majority of the Court has been paid "gratuities," Trump has been assassinated, Republican leaders in Congress have been arrested, Jim Jordan was killed resisting arrest, etc.