

Profiles in courage

EDITOR'S NOTE: This story has been updated to more precisely describe White House press secretary Sean Spicer's location late Tuesday night in the minutes before he briefed reporters.

Spicer huddled with his staff among bushes near television sets on the White House grounds, not "in the bushes," as the story originally stated.

Washington Post, May 10, 2017, correction added to the end of its story about Spicer's behavior prior to announcing Trump had fired FBI director James Comey