

Psychopaths say

There's no doubt I'm a capitalist.
I'm trying to create a big drug company, a successful drug company, a profitable drug company.

Martin Shkreli, ex-hedge fund manager, who former employees sued for unpaid wages, who urged the FDA to not approve drugs from companies he was selling short, who was accused of harassing an ex-employee and his family and of using company funds to pay personal debts, defending Turing Pharmaceuticals, his new company, which acquired rights to Daraprim, a 62-year old drug used to treat pregnant women, infants, AIDS and cancer patients, and then raised its price 5,500 percent, from $13.50 to $750.00 per pill
