

Public discourse

This is what the sociologist Howard Becker calls the “hierarchy of credibility”:
Those at the top of the social hierarchy don't have to prove their claims; they're just taken for granted.
But claims made by those on the bottom are burdened by skepticism and demands for proof.

Eleni Schirmer and Louise Seamster,
New York Times, May 26, 2023