

Public lands

We also have a pretty good idea of, certainly, the oil and gas potential – not much!
So Bears Ears isn't really about oil and gas.

Ryan Zinke's mockingly reassuring announcement that the Trump administration would review the status of Bears Ears National Monument created in Utah in 2016 by Barack Obama, which review – surprise! surprise! – resulted in shrinking it by 85% to allow more than a million acres to be leased to coal and uranium miners