

Regulations

The majority fails to read the statutory authorization right because it fails to read it whole. ...

Would Congress have given the Secretary power to wholly eliminate a requirement, as well as to relax it just a little bit, but nothing in between? The majority says yes. But the answer is no, because Congress would not have written so insane a law.

...

the majority's most basic error: extracting "modify" from the "waive or modify" phrase in order to confine the Secretary to making minor changes. ... the phrase as a whole says the opposite — tells the Secretary that he can make changes along a spectrum, from modest to substantial.

Elena Kagan, dissent in *Biden v. Nebraska, et. al.