

Rights

Can citizens exercise their basic political rights in a way that gives them a voice and not just a vote?

In practice,
that often comes down to the question,
How many voices are already audible?
How many choruses are there that you might choose to join (in particular, ones that don't sing with an upper-class accent)?
How many representations of different ideas, interests, and, for that matter, identities?
