Every president in our history has defended this orderly transfer of authority except one. January 6, 2021, was the first time an American president refused his constitutional duty to to transfer power peacefully to the next. ... Among the most shameful of this committee's findings was that President Trump sat in the dining room of the Oval Office, watching the violent riot at the Capitol on television. For hours, he would not issue a public statement instructing his supporters to disperse and leave the Capitol. ... In addition to being unlawful, as described in our report, this was an utter moral failure and a clear dereliction of duty. ... No man who would behave that way at that moment in time can ever serve in any office of authority in our nation again. He is unfit for any office.
