

Social media

At some point, the instrument of misinformation becomes less troubling than the underlying receptiveness to it.

... social media users are discussed as if they were passive victims of demonic possession. The implication, that they would be model citizens were it not for the apps, slips by unquestioned.

The politics is impeccable.

It is safer to challenge a business than the public.

But if the point is to fathom the problem, the evasion becomes self-defeating.
