

Treason

The notion that America's president could be an agent of the Kremlin is so outlandish that it is almost self-discrediting.

People who happily speculate about UFOs, or an inside job on 9/11, steer clear of portraying Mr Trump as the Manchurian candidate. To float the idea is to risk being labelled a conspiracy theorist.

In private, however, it is a serious topic.

Edward Luce,
Financial Times chief US commentator,
January 18, 2019