

Trumpists say

If something like this happened in Arkansas on a bridge there, let's just say that there would be a lot of very wet criminals that would have been tossed overboard, not by law enforcement, but by the people whose road they are blocking. If they glued their hands to a car or pavement, it would probably be pretty painful to have their skin ripped off, but I think that's the way we'd handle it in Arkansas. And I'd encourage most people, anywhere, that get stuck behind criminals like this that are trying to block traffic like this, to take matters into their own hands.

Tom Cotton, on the Right way to handle peaceful protesters