

Trumpists say

"My family and colleagues told me that when I have kids I'll think about the separations differently. But I don't think so ... DHS sent me to the border to see the separations for myself — to try to make me more compassionate — but it didn't work."

"It didn't work? I will never forget what I saw. Seriously. Are you a white nationalist?"
I asked exasperated.

"No, but I believe if you come to America you should assimilate.
Why do we need to have 'Little Havana'?"

Katie Miller,
former DHS spokesperson,
quoted by Jacob Soboroff
in his book, Separated,
about Trump's child separation policy