

Trumpists say

Since wards are liabilities, there is no business case for retaining them in their present, ambulatory form.
Therefore, the most profitable disposition for this dubious form of capital is to convert them into biodiesel, which can help power the Muni buses [in San Francisco].

...

The trouble with the biodiesel solution is that no one would want to live in a city whose public transportation was fueled, even just partly, by the distilled remains of its late underclass.

Curtis Yarvin, the political thinker admired by J. D. Vance