

Work

[I]t is the state that establishes the default constitution of workplace governance.

It is a form of authoritarian, private government, in which, under employment-at-will, workers cede all their rights to their employers, except those specifically reserved for them by law.

Elizabeth Anderson, Private Government