

Writing

But writing has been around for only six thousand years or so, and most people didn't see much of it — it wasn't omnipresent in daily life — before the invention of the printing press and the rise of the modern nation-state. There is no particular reason to think it will long outlive them.

Josephine Quinn,
New York Review of Books, January 19, 2023